Mark your calendars now to join us for an exciting new conference! The first day of the conference will feature presentations on aspects of child development and neurosensory development and the work of professionals who have studied the issues involved in the environment for young children. Potential presentation topics include a child's sense of place and outdoor design.

The second day will feature 6-8 designers, architects and landscape architects discussing how their designs accomplish developmental goals.

The last two days of the conference will be highlighted by the attendees dividing into workgroups that include top professionals in the fields of architecture, child development and education working on the design of a village for children. An overview of the groups' solutions will be presented during the last day of the conference.

This conference will provide AIA/CES Learning Units.
